(1) Direct expenses

List here all liabilities and expenses incurred by you or with your express or implied consent at any time before the poll for the supply or use of goods or the provision of services which are used during the regulated period to promote or procure the election of any candidate or to prejudice the electoral prospects of any candidate in the election – see Article 9(1)(b).

If the goods or services were supplied free of charge or at a discount to the open market value you should make the entry in Section B.

Please describe the goods or services in sufficient detail (do not simply put "goods and services")

Keep all invoices/receipts and other proof of election expenses. You may be asked to supply them.

(2) Donations (including Notional Expenses)

Donations in the form of loans and gifts of money received by you in connection with the election must be declared. You must also declare any notional expense. A notional expense arises when goods or services are supplied either free of charge or at a discount to the open market value of or rate for such goods or services. The difference between the notional expenditure/liability and the open market value of such goods or services supplied is a "gift" or donation from the donor. The value of the "donation" is determined in accordance with paragraph 3 of the Schedule to the Law, disregarding any notional expense that by virtue of paragraph 5, 6, 7 or 8 of the Schedule is not a deemed to be a donation. List in section B notional and equivalent open market value of all such donations received in connection with the election.

Advice please

For the recent election I agreed to contribute to a leaflet drop in St Helier South and Central

It was for no particular candidate as long as it was criticising REFORM CANDIDATES that were in favour of a new School in the Millennium Park

I am awaiting the bill / account etc which is or supposed to be under £350.00, I am advised I do not have to declare if my electoral contribution is below £600.)).

Is that correct... Please advise
